

The Alarm.com Academy Earns “Best Education and Support Program” Award at CES 2019

January 10, 2019

Innovative training program for service providers recognized with Consumer Technology Association’s Mark of Excellence Award

TYSONS, Va. and LAS VEGAS, Jan. 10, 2019 (GLOBE NEWSWIRE) -- Alarm.com, the leading platform for the intelligently connected property, won the Consumer Technology Association’s Mark of Excellence Award for its innovative training program, the Alarm.com Academy. The Alarm.com Academy is a comprehensive training program for service providers, offering support to help service providers optimize all areas of their business. Its in-person and online programs and resources help Alarm.com’s partners to become experts in selling, installing and supporting Alarm.com products and services, and enable them to capture new market opportunities.

“Alarm.com’s service provider partners are leading the adoption of smart home technology today,” said Anne Ferguson, Alarm.com’s Vice President of Marketing. “The Alarm.com Academy offers innovative training programs to keep them ahead of the rapidly changing, technology-driven market for smart home and business solutions. It’s an honor for our deep commitment to our service provider partners to be recognized with a Mark of Excellence Award here at CES.”

With more consumers turning to professional service providers to ensure that their investment in smart home technology delivers long-term value, the Alarm.com Academy equips service providers to deliver an exceptional smart home experience. Its comprehensive, end-to-end curriculum includes modules to improve service and build value across all aspects of a service provider’s business.

The Mark of Excellence Award recognizes the range of new learning programs launched by the Alarm.com Academy in the last year, which include live training webinars, consultative style workshops, and an expanded eLearning platform for customer service simulations. In addition, the Academy’s PowerUp Conference, an intensive multi-day learning experience, has expanded its immersive, hands-on training experiences with interactive troubleshooting and consultative workshops.
